For her warm friendliness, for her dignity as a truly educated woman and teacher, and for the uncompromising love for her work which underlies her relation to students and faculty members alike - - qualities she has unconsciously imparted to those who have studied with her, - - the class of 1958 dedicates this edition of "Classic Myths" with gratitude and affection to Miss Margaret M. Walsh.

PRESIDENTS' ADDRESS

Mr. Fenner, Parents, Teachers, and Friends:

To the last meeting of the class of 1958, I bid you all a most cordial welcome. How very strange to say our last class meeting! Three years ago we met here for the first time. Some had been classmates at Chandler, at Grafton, or at Providence; most were strangers. Now we see only friends. In September of 1955 the road ahead was new, a little frightening, and very long; now we can only think how short a time we have spent here.

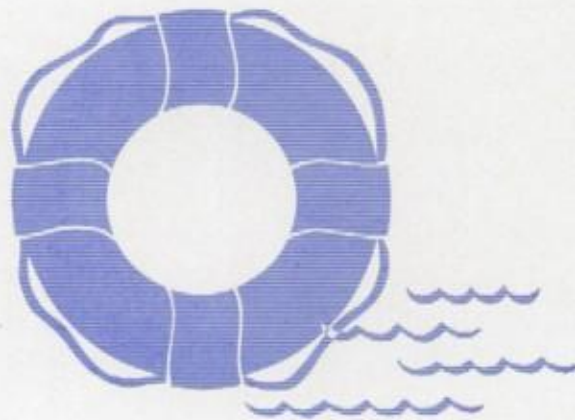

For all that we have gained, for all that we have enjoyed, we know well we must thank our parents, our principal, and our teachers. And we owe much to each other for these pleasant days of youth.

Let us then together, before we set out upon our separate ways, look back on the way we have come, listen to some words of wisdom, hear some music and bequeath our common wealth before, on Tuesday, we join the long line of those privileged to call Classical, Alma Mater.

CLASS HISTORY

CLAIRE TARRANT

Small craft warnings were displayed in the Tatnuck, Vernon Hill, and Shrewsbury Street areas as approximately two hundred and thirty of us moved toward the good ship "Classicalia." We were greeted by Captain Fenner in the main salon or Assembly Hall. Shocked by the brilliant glare from the light, we meekly accepted our places on the bottom rung of the ladder. This was a new year for us, a year of discovery, a year when nobody knew who Eddie Simonian and Ralph Johanson were. During the autumn days we walked the deck, we discovered an annex to the galley, "Lanos," and by the end of October Carol Leader, Pat Fell, Neil Riordan and John Clifford had their names in the "Argus." In November we had become so famous a class that all our names - even our telephone numbers - were published. Any voyage has its risks, and so when Mary Lowney broke her leg, we just chalked it up to a better understanding of navigation. Although the year was a stormy one, there were buoys to guide us: Tom Foley, Ralph Johanson, and Paul Engstrom made the varsity football team that won the Inter-high Championship. Paul Sullivan and Larry Purington made the first string hockey team, and Paul Faler made the baseball team. We were all very proud. We attended our first varsity show and watched Debby, Janie, and Carole dance with dry bones. Unable to keep up with the pace, Susan and Sandra Budnitz escaped to Bancroft, and we lost a few other members to our worthy opponents, Commerce, North, and South Gail Thomashaw and Bev Levine made us all more than a little envious when they highlighted their sophomore year by attending the Senior Prom, while Barbara Bachrach, Carolyn Patton, Vyto Gailunas, Rose Hussey, Jim Swicklas, Doreen Waskiewicz, Casimir Matonis, Debby Sawyer, Mark Sherman, Irene Staras, Judy Pearlman, and John Rizos, had to be content with Horace Mann honors.

We ushered in our junior year with Eisenhower and Stevenson fighting it out to the cry of "Salatubiel!" We decided that we were much too grown up for frivolity and opened our second year aboard ship formally with class elections, choosing Ralph Johanson as Captain; Maryjo Gosler, first-mate; Pat Fell, second-mate; and Mike Pellegrino, purser. As we stopped to count up, we found that we had some new crew-members; Janet Dye, Janet Richmond, Alyce Butler, John Kelly, Charlie Murphy, and Jackie Hickey - all from Assumption - the boys that is! We surrendered our desire to be grown up and took to celebrating at Barbara Ovane's open quarters and attending our second variety show to hear Mary Jane Holloway sing with "never such a devoted sister," and then gave our hearts to Mr. Elvis Butler and Bobo. True to its name our Junior Prom, under the chairmanship of Barbara Ovanes with Laurie Freeman, Eddie Simonian, and Franny Nitka, turned into a "Snowflake Fantasy" that began at Wachusett Country Club and ended at the Old Mill. Age began to tell on us; by May we almost reached the point of disintegration - at least the mold was showing. The names Alyce, Jimmy, Eddie, Janet, Frosty, and Maryjo will always be synonymous with this Classical first, and with Sunday dress-up day as well. The Classical spotlight fell one evening in May on Harriet Loew as with Richie "Dad" Bogage, she relived the life of Cornelia Otis Skinner. Her performance made us all aware of the latest addition to our hall of fame. The play was followed by Joanne Garabedian's open quarters. When the results of the "Argus" tryouts were announced, we found that we had two literary geniuses aboard, Judy Pearlman and Richie Bogage in the chartroom, with Helen Salvin and Joan Kalinowski piloting the business staff. The Junior picnic followed with its ups and downs, and rounds and rounds.

Graduation brought honors to our class with Carolyn Bohmann receiving the Aletheia Award and Bruce Brooks the Harvard Book Prize. The roll of the elite read Barbara Bachrach, Bruce Brooks, Howard Cohen, Marvin Cramer, Janet Dye, Vyto Gailiunas, Al Grace, Linda Jaffee, Stephan Joseph, Carolyn Patton, Judy Pearlman, Dolores Pucilauskas, John Rizos, and Sue Sack. As the Senior Class left the auditorium singing the "Alma Mater" we knew that their places were ours.

The Russians and their space plans started our third and Senior year off with a bang, and before we knew it Sputnik I was launched, followed by Muttnik II. We were Seniors, filled with pride and a little doubt as to what our future held, but not at all fearful. As before, we chose Ralph Johanson as Captain and gave him Jan Richmond as first-mate; Carolyn Patton, second-mate, and Mike Gordon as purser. With the help of Sandy Cocaine and Mike Pellegrino, the strong rule of the Seniors was enforced, for after all what Sophomore could ignore an "I Am a Senior" sign. Led by Helen Ann Cohen and Sue Marsaw, our cheer-leading Captains, in October we danced in "Tiger Tracks." We still have not recovered from the shock of hearing the North High Alma Mater at a Classical dance. About a month later Bob Lian, Nancy Dupre, Janet Richmond, Danny Brosnihan, Claudia Sutherland, and Company took time off to attend the C. Y. C. Convention in Philadelphia, and from what I hear Philly and the hotel will never be the same. Although Friday the thirteenth is traditionally unlucky, under the expert direction of Harriet Loew and with the hysterical jokes of "Chucky" Palson, we sailed "Around the World" most successfully with S. R. O. from the top sail. We returned from vacation, praying for intelligence when we took the College Boards. When they were over, there was a great deal of celebrating at the Bancroft, and we often stop to wonder who went where after the dance. When the Scholastic Art Awards were made we found Michael Orasz, Jim Swope, Linda Allmon, Judy Starbard, Gary Blazis, Doreen Finlayson, and Mary Jane Holloway to be winners. The National Merit honors were announced with Laurie Freeman receiving a certificate of merit and Mark Sherman a letter of commendation.

To the Ides of March we paid due heed, but we had a wonderful time at our Senior Hop under the chairmanship of Pat Fell and Ros Heald, with Judy Bretholtz, Franny Nitka, Jimmy Mooradian, Alyce Butler and Ed Simonian at the Yellow Barn in Northboro. We shall not soon forget that brothers can be attractive dates and that there is always consolation in a beast pool. In fact Jan found she even liked Barnes.

Thanks to Miss Gilbert and the extraordinary skill of Harriet Loew and Laurie Freeman, who each leave a pair of footsteps that will be difficult to follow in, our Senior Play "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" was an outstanding success.

Our voyage is now nearing its end, but for Val Harden and Judy Rosenbaum it is the beginning of another voyage on the sea of matrimony. We look forward to the frivolity of the Senior Prom and the solemnity of Graduation which will bring First Honors to speakers John Rizos, Carolyn Patton, Carolyn Bohmann, and Vyto Gailiunas.

We leave with one thing in mind, "that all our todays and tomorrows will soon become yesterdays linked together only by the magic bridge of memories" - memories that are funny, sad ridiculous and inspiring - the memories of patient, sorely tired teachers and the lasting memory of friendship.

CLASS WILL 1958

A. CHARLES PALSON

We, the class of 1958, being of sound mind and sound body — we think — do hereby bequeath the following treasured possessions:

To the floors of Classical, we leave lubricating oil.

To Mr. Johnstone, we leave a cleared lane of stairs up to the third floor.

Ralph Johanson leaves his determination to any undetermined Junior.

To Miss Phillips, we leave some heavy football equipment to protect her from students who suffer the illusion of being football stars on the way down stairs.

To the dark halls of Classical, Bruce Brooks leaves his cheery red hair.

To Mr. Weed, we leave a large voracious fish that will eat up all his other little fish, thus making it an easy chore to feed his fish.

Tom Foley leaves his admirable self-control to some unsuspecting Junior.

To Mr. Powers, we bequeath an alarm that goes off every time more than three turns of the pencil sharpener are made.

Harriet Loew leaves her footprints to anyone who thinks she can fill them.

Alyce Butler leaves her pony tail to anyone who can grow it longer.

Ethel Sugarman leaves her claim to "Magundi" to anyone who wants it.

Mike Gordon leaves for a bright future in the Internal Revenue Department.

Carolyn Patton leaves without finding someone brave enough to take over her many activities.

The Moschos twins leave the school's politicking to any enterprising seniors of next year.

Allie Horowitz leaves, still protesting she is not a juvenile delinquent.

Mary Jane Holloway leaves, ducking for her Foxhall.

Mark Sherman leaves his musical ability to the unlucky monotones who try out for the Boys' Glee Club.

Judy Rosenbaum and Valerie Harden leave with very heavy third fingers on their left hands.

Barry Levitsky leaves the Student Council with all-powerful authority over school affairs.

Marsha Bodin leaves, still talking.

Jimmy Mooradian leaves for his butler job.

Helen Salvin leaves without falling over backwards.

Dave Partridge leaves, happy as a lark.

Walt Horan leaves his ability to count pennies to a Junior ambitious enough to be a milkman.

Rosemary Finneran leaves to the chemistry lab the holes in her blouse as a reminder to any over-anxious chemistry student.

Rich Bogage leaves his feat of being the only student of Classical ever to park his car in the teachers' parking lot.

Ros Heald leaves his height and build to Don Diamond.

Eddie Simonian leaves a black band to Classical to mourn the departure of the life of the party.

Paul Engstrom leaves his athletic ability to any poor soul who is tired of climbing the stairs.

John Lively leaves a sandbox in Mr. Rice's room for all the kids who want to play the game.

To Mr. Butler, we leave a fenderless car compliments of Mooradian and company.

Thomas Roy leaves with a good solid blast of his trumpet.

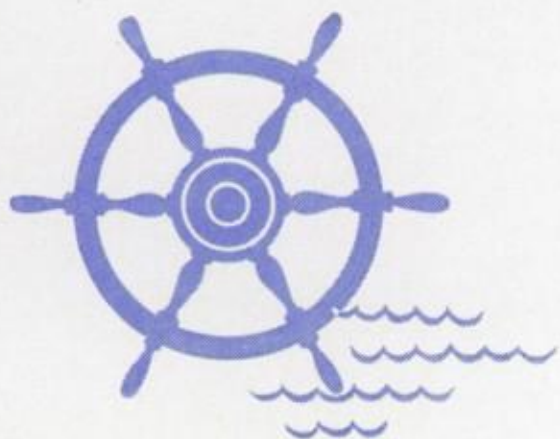

Mr. Rice and Mr. Hearn leave with us, for they cannot endure seeing the graduation class leave.

To Mr. Fenner, Mr. Couming, and the faculty we leave our sincere thanks for working with us and making us a little wiser and a little better for the years to come.

This will has been witnessed and signed by: A. Charles Palson, Testator

CLASS ORATION 1958

RICHARD A. BOGAGE

Americans today very proudly, and probably sincerely, claim that they are undergoing a religious revival. Numerous churches, temples, and synagogues have been built since the end of World War II. In Worcester, for example, forty-two houses of worship and religious schools have been erected since 1945. And to these houses of worship people are flocking. "Why?" we ask. Are our brethren afraid of something or are they interested in searching out the goodness of life and an approach to God? Is it the fear and the tension resulting from the discovery of nuclear energy, the invention of interspatial rockets, the threats of Soviet imperialism, or is it the natural craving of man to find the love which will make their lives more meaningful?

"And you shall love thy neighbor as thyself."

These words have long been regarded as the noblest teaching of religion. As we repeat them time after time, do we regard their essential meaning? Do we know their power?

We love life and ourselves. Of that there can be no doubt. Our time, our energy, and our talents are devoted not only to acquiring clothing, shelter, and food to maintain existence, but to training the mind and the spirit to achieve the stature of human beings. If we must love our neighbor as ourselves, we must be concerned that they, too, have the essentials for existence and the opportunities of men. None may be excluded from our deference, not by reason of race, color, creed, social position, economic class, or any other consideration. It is the love of neighbor that has built our hospitals, our orphanages, our homes for the aged. Love of neighbor eventually freed the slaves and must inevitably give to their grandchildren all the rights and privileges of American citizenship. For more than three hundred years, people have been coming to America to escape tyranny, hopeless poverty, and persecution, and to share in the promise and the building of a new way of life. Unless we accept these strangers — unless we love them as our neighbors — their purpose in coming to America will be defeated.

Some of us have learned that Hillel told the pagan who asked him to teach him the entire Torah, that love of neighbor is to do unto others as you would want others to do unto you. Jesus, in his Sermon on the Mount gave the same message. No matter who said it, when, or where, we must understand it in order to approach the goodness, the beauty, the purpose, and the meaning of life in a God-motivated world. We must love our neighbors as ourselves.

Throughout the history of man, man has projected structures, religious and otherwise, to attempt to explain the many wonders of life which confront him. Religions have grown and have appealed to men on all levels in varying ways. Many of our neighbors have embraced views of the absolute which differ from our own view. Just because our neighbors do not share our views does not mean that they are wrong and should be ridiculed or hated. Our neighbors may use different, even strange means, but the end they seek should be respected. We are all equal before our Creator, we are all brothers, each possessing the divine spark which impels us toward goodness. We must walk the road together, each respecting the other's position, each loving his neighbor as himself.

CRUISE PARTIES

What a variety of good times we have had together on our Mythical cruise! Our days have been filled with shipboard lectures on history and literature with the music of gay voice and instrument, with the publication of the Cruise News, and with masquerade parties where we have met such memorable characters as the family of Cornelia Otis Skinner and the Barretts of Wimpole Street. As we see again the faces of those with whom we pursued our hobbies and interests, we shall relive those past adventures, our pleasure heightened by the memory of the fellowship we shared.

DECK SPORTS

From that first thrilling week to those last glorious days aboard the good ship "Classicalia," much of our leisure time was spent participating in the numerous sports tournaments offered by the ship's recreation directors. We were able to arrange our activities to suit our tastes and moods, and we tried our skill at various deck sports. Others of us limited our activities to encouraging our favorite teams from the comfort of our deck chairs. Led by our energetic cheerleaders' cries of "Salatubiel!" we won many a victory for the teams of the good ship "Classicalia."

TRAVELOGUE

The "Classicalia" travelogue, our cruise in retrospect, is filled with pictures to evoke happy memories: that star-studded play produced by our own friends, a variety show held on board ship for the entertainment of passengers and crew alike, our talented shipmates who amazed us with their prowess in many fields, and all the events, important and unimportant, that bear meaning for each of us in a different way. Through the pictures in our travelogue, we can relive with our friends the cruise that occupies three very important years of our lives.

The happy story of 5 smart girls . . .

. . . who attended

WARD SCHOOLS

NATIONALLY KNOWN • CO-EDUCATIONAL

They all started

SECRETARIAL TRAINING at the same time. They studied Shorthand . . . learning to take dictation rapidly . . . and Typewriting, developing speed and accuracy. Some of the girls had high-school secretarial training, so they went into the advanced classes.

They learned to keep books and records. They mastered all the accepted filing methods. They gained skill in operating office- and business-machines. They even learned how to manage an office.

What's more, they acquired poise and personality . . . nice traits in the well-trained, well-groomed secretary. They made valuable social contacts with friends and classmates, too.

THEN . . . each became a secretary!

One became a secretary to an airline official and visited many far-off places.

One became a secretary at a television station. She worked for directors and for the station manager.

Another became secretary to a prominent physician. She was in charge of all the case histories.

Still another became secretary to a buyer and learned all about styling and merchandising.

The fifth smart girl set up a business for herself as Executive Secretary to the social organizations in her own community.

YOU CAN BE EQUALLY SUCCESSFUL!

Write or phone for information on how you, too, can enjoy the benefits of WARD Schools training.
